

SALLY ALAZAB

I've always loved reading books and novels, but I never imagined I would write one myself. Life has a way of surprising us, and this memoir is one of those surprises. It's my way of sharing the story that shaped who I am today.

HAVE YOU EVER WONDERED WHAT IT FEELS LIKE TO LEAVE YOUR HOME AND KNOW YOU MAY NEVER RETURN?

This memoir tells the story of the day my life changed when the civil war forced me to leave everything behind. I share what it was like to say goodbye to family and friends, face fear and uncertainty, and find the strength to start again. At its heart, this is a story of loss, resilience, and holding on to the past while building a new future. Through heartbreak and fear, my story shows what it means to survive, to adapt, and to keep going.
